

Appolonia Foundation for Children's Dental Health Mobile Dental Clinics

Over twenty-five percent of California's school children suffer daily in class from untreated dental disease. Nationally, children miss 52 million hours of school each year due to oral health problems. The pain caused by cavities is not mild pain. It can be an unbearable, throbbing pain that makes learning difficult for your child.

- Children should see a dentist twice a year starting around their first birthday.
- If your child has not been to the dentist make sure he or she receives a full dental examination before they start school.
